U.S. and Russia Agree on Palestine Plan at Security Council Talks

The recent threat by the United States and the Soviet Union to use military force to settle the dispute over Palestine has been resolved after the United States has agreed to a plan for partitioning the country into two states, a Jewish state and an Arab state. The agreement was reached in the United Nations Security Council in New York after six days of intense negotiations.

What they produce" Mr. Baruch said, "we want to sell. How can we help the people of the world to have more bread, more clothing, more homes, more transportation, without surrendering their rights as a way of life, which makes possible quick material progress?"

"I am glad to see that the United States has a majority of votes in the United Nations," Mr. Baruch said. "I am sure that the United States will stand firm in its belief that the United Nations should have the authority to decide on the principles of peace and security for the world."

"We have not used the resources of America solely because we want to," Mr. Baruch continued. "We have used them because we believe that the United Nations is the only way to achieve peace and security for the world."

The Baruch plan, which was accepted by the United Nations, was presented to the Security Council on November 15. It calls for the establishment of a United Nations Commission to supervise the implementation of the plan. The Commission will be composed of representatives of the United States, the Soviet Union, and other nations.

Baruch ended his speech by saying, "We are confident that the United Nations will carry out its responsibilities in the interest of peace and security for all nations."
